Pres 16-10

Joint Meeting with City Council and South Adams County Water and Sanitation District Board - Development Fee Comparison Study Results

City Manager McBroom stated that tonight's presentation has a lot of information and it is city staff's intent to conduct an in-depth study session with council to have an appropriate policy-level discussion about any changes council wishes to make on how we fund development projects in the city.

Rick Giardina with Raftelis gave a presentation on the results of the development fee comparison study that his company conducted. He stated that the project objective was to calculate and compare the cost of development in Commerce City to other Metro Denver communities. Eight different development profiles were examined: single-family residential, multi-family residential, commercial retail, industrial warehouse, irrigation only, restaurant, manufacturing, and truck wash. The comparison communities were Aurora, Brighton, Broomfield, Castle Rock, Denver, Greeley, Longmont, Parker, Thornton, and Westminster. The costs analyzed were: building fees, use tax, water and wastewater fees, development fees, general improvement district and metropolitan district fees, public works fees, park fees, school district fees, and other general government fees.

In regards to upfront development costs, Commerce City is not the most expensive, nor the least expensive, compared to the other communities. For example, the cost for a single-family detached residence is approximately $41,000 with 50% of those fees coming from water and wastewater fees ($21,000), the second largest fee is use tax ($8,100). The use tax in Commerce City is assessed at 60% of the valuation, where in other communities it's 50%. The consultant's observation is that across the different profiles, the city is within a reasonable range of its competitors.

In regards to ongoing development costs, Commerce City is at the high end, mostly due to mill levies and the monthly water and sewer rates. The consultant's observation is that Commerce City's use tax is higher and no other community recovers the cost of water rights for public facilities in the same manner as the district.

Mayor Ford thought that this information provides a real view of where the city stands and council needs to look at ways to become a little more competitive. He said council's two primary goals, from an economic development standpoint, are restaurants and commercial.

President Murray felt the study was excellent and a lot more comprehensive than he thought it would be. He believes the study helps answer the question of why some development is not coming in, and identifies adjustments that can be made to address the issue.

A motion was made by Director Cordero, seconded by Director Phillips, to adjourn the South Adams County Water and Sanitation District Meeting.

VOTE: Unanimous; all members of the board voted affirmatively

7. Public Hearings

Mayor Ford opened the public hearing on the annexation and interrelated zoning case.

Planner Paul Workman was sworn in. He testified to the following facts regarding the annexation:

There is only one property owner.

One property owner signed the petition.

The city council has adopted a plan for the area proposed to be annexed.

At least one-sixth of the perimeter of the area proposed to be annexed is contiguous with the existing boundaries of the city.

A community of interest exists between the area proposed to be annexed and the city.

The area is capable of being urbanized.

The area is capable of being integrated with the city.

The property is eligible for annexation by the city.

The proposed area to be annexed would not result in detachment of an area from one school district and attachment to another school district.

The annexation will not result in extending the boundary of the city more than three miles in any direction.

The entire width of an alley or street is included in the annexation petition.

All the requirements for annexation under the state constitution and the laws of the state have been met..

Planner Workman stated that the request for annexation and zoning represent over three years of coordination between RTD and the city. The subject property is located at 72nd & Colorado Boulevard and will be used as a transit station along the North Metro Rail Line. Mr. Workman reviewed the concept plan for the station and immediate area. The planning commission analysis of the station area master plan, as it relates to this request, is that the annexation and zoning of this property is the first step in realizing the unifying character as discussed in the station area master plan. The staff development review team recommends approval of the annexation.

Jeff Kay appeared on behalf of the applicant, RTD.

There was no citizen input and the mayor closed the public hearing.
