BACKGROUND/REQUEST

Jairo Aguayo and Roberto Montes Garcia witnessed the shooting near 60th Avenue and Monaco Street while working in the park. The incident began near the corner where they were assigned that day. Once the shooter fled and it was safe to respond, both employees immediately sprang into action.

Jairo and Roberto ran across the street to assist the female victim, who remained in her vehicle. Using the first aid training they had received and the medical supplies available to them on-site, they provided care and comfort to the victim until emergency responders arrived.

Their actions demonstrated tremendous courage, professionalism, and compassion under extraordinarily difficult circumstances. Rather than retreat or wait from a distance, they stepped forward to help someone in crisis the moment it was safe to do so. Their response reflects the very best of public service, and they were truly heroes that day.
